

Anglia Ruskin
University

Global Sustainability
Institute

Spending time in a low carbon society: Less stuff, more fun?

Dr Angela Druckman, University of Surrey

22nd April 13:00 - 14:00
LAB 109

> Global Sustainability Institute and Centre for the Understanding of Sustainable Prosperity
Seminar_

Free to attend_ >>Lunch Provided<<

Can we have more fun, while using less 'stuff'? In this talk Angela Druckman will consider what makes us happy, how we currently use our time, and the environmental impacts of our different activities. The talk will conclude by discussing some possible avenues that may lead towards more sustainable lifestyles.

Angela Druckman is Senior Lecturer at the Centre for Environmental Strategy, University of Surrey, and Co-Investigator in the Centre for the Understanding of Sustainable Prosperity (CUSP).

